My Dream Factory

by Kristina Glisovic of Takovski Ustanak school

If I had one chance in my life to create something new, and if I could have my own factory, I would like to create new planets.

They would be designed by expert designers from many countries. That people would be my first team. In the second team, I would put my lovely robots who build everything according to the designer's words. After that, in my third team, I would put psychologists and psychiatrists. They would decide who is mentally stable to leave our planet and who is ready to go on to the "creation".

We would work with a spaceship company, which helps us to transport new planet population, but only in one way. Planets would be smaller than our regular planet. Some of them would have one part with smaller gravitation, so people can float and have fun, like on the Moon, for example. Each of the planets wouldn't have time, so there's no night. Vegetation would be the same as this one on the Earth. Animals can go with people, but only the small ones, such as cats and dogs, bugs, chickens, turtles, ducks, etc.

Also, people must come back to the Earth if they need: water, food and other supplies. Their transport isn't a spacetaxi, rockets or something like that. It's a teleport machine. Police stations, hospitals and other important buildings would be the same as on the Earth. People wouldn't need money anymore. Everything would be free. The planets will be made according to the orders of several people who have the same or similar opinions, so there's no arguing about anything. And also, people can bring their family members, but only with the promise that they won't make any accidents.

I hope that one day I will be able to fill the forehead galaxy with my planets, and that the people in them will be much happier than on our lovely, big Earth.
